Casey Kopcho is a recognized expert in public sector auditing, governance, emerging technologies, and risks with over 22 years of experience spanning auditing, risk management, and finance transformation. He has worked extensively across public and private sectors, providing assurance that critical business processes operate efficiently, effectively, and equitably.

He has served on audit committees and as an advisor for complex government and regulatory programs, and is a subject matter expert on risk-based auditing, health systems, AI governance, and ethical delivery. He currently serves as a Principal at CLA, leading Midwest State & Local Government Business Risk Services. Before arriving in Minnesota, he worked for the Oregon Secretary of State—delivering award-winning audit work, the Texas Department of Transportation, Deloitte, and the U.S. Government Accountability Office.

A sought-after speaker and thought leader, he delivers keynote addresses and professional training sessions nationwide on topics ranging from Generative AI in auditing to ethical leadership in government. In addition to his practical experience, Casey contributes to thought leadership through published articles, webinar instruction, and contributions to professional organizations.

Beyond his work in audit and governance, Casey spends his days with his wife and two children and their family pets. His deep understanding of the intersection between governance, technology, and accountability makes him a trusted voice in the evolving landscape of public sector audit and oversight. Casey earned both Bachelor's and Master's in Accounting and Information Management from the University of Texas at Dallas and maintains his active CIA credential.
